VIRGINIA AND THE WORLD'S FAIR on Wednesday Major R. V. Gaines, a men

ber, proposed a resolution, which was ed. "That the attention of the Gov ernor should be called to the important of an appropriation by the Legislature to the Department of Agriculture for the purpose of exhibiting the agricultural and mineral products of the State at the World's Fair in 1892."

This resolution was not premature, either in.its special application to the Department of Agriculture or in its indirect application to every interest of the State which should be represented in the World's Fair at Chicago. It is far from being too soon for the public authorities and private individuals to take the necessary steps looking to a representa-tive exhibit on the occasion named; of all the varied products of the soil of Virginia, of all the inexhaustible mineral resources beneath its surface, and of the different forms of its expanding manufactures. This abolished in the United States. such an exhibit would be almost beyond the power of calculation. It could not fail to create a profound impression in favor of the material resources of Virginia. Even now, many months before the Fair will be inaugurated, the magnificent advantage of this great Commonwealth are attracting an exaggeration to say that the eyes of Union are being turned with growing in terest in this direction.

An exhibit at Chicago in 1892 on a prope scale, in the point both of quantity and quality, would not only confirm the prediections that have already been formed in our favor, but would have the stronges tendency to promote the existing dispo-Western people to cast in their personal fortunes with us, or to make larger invest ents in our enterprises. Mr. O'Ferrall managed Venable's case admirably, displaying marked skill as a parliamentarian, and deserves the applause of every good Democrat in the country, especially in Virginia. The seating of Langston will not conduce to harmonizing the Republican party in the Petersburg district. Mr. Harman surprised Captain Tom Crowder into telling them in a rather left-handed way that they were the most handsome and chivalrous-looking knights that ever charged at each other or at an iron ring. After this the knights did their charging, which occupied the time till 5:45, with the following result:

1st. Mr. J. W. Crawford, of New Hope, Knight of the Nineteenth Century.

2d. Mr. George F. Irvine, of Parnassas, Black Knight of Ivanhoe.

3d. Mr. John East, of Spring Hill, Knight of University of Virginia.

4th. Mr. Hugh Braxton, of Staunton, Knight of Westmoreland, after riding off a tie with Mr. W. Dunlap, Knight of the Mountains.

After this result had been announced by the judges, the knights paraded the length of the course, and on their return, Mr. George Irvine's equipment, as the Black Knight, was declared deserving of the fifth prize offered to the best-equipped knight.
